

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A system and a method searches items offered for sale by a merchant. The system and the method accesses and/or searches information relating to items and/or services offered for sale by a merchant located within a multi-dealer retail establishment. The system and the method accesses the information from any computer terminal with network accessible capabilities. Moreover, the system and the method accesses the information in the database to locate available items and/or to provide prices of the available items.